A NEW 'KING OF THE MOUNTAIN' HAS BEEN CROWNED

It is with absolute excitement that we officially announce our new partnership with the Virgin Australia Supercars Championship as the naming rights sponsor of marquee event, the Bathurst 1000, starting in 2021.

Australasia's most iconic motorsport race will be known as the Repco Bathurst 1000 and even though it doesn't start until next year, we are ecstatic to be crowned the new 'King of the Mountain.'

Repco is no stranger to motorsport. In fact, it's in our DNA. In 2018, we entered a partnership with the Shell V-Power Racing Team and later became the Official Automotive Retailer of the Supercars series. We have a long history in motorsport spanning almost 100 years, that includes engine manufacturing, a partnership with the legendary Sir Jack Brabham, the development and build of the F5000 engine for Formula 5000 racing, and our engines have won races in Formula 1, the Australian Driver's Championship, and the Australian Sports Car Championship, just to name a few.

We're stepping up our involvement in motorsport and are looking forward to it helping us deliver you a better program. In addition to the ongoing great value of being a Repco trade customer, the partnership will allow us to provide you with even more benefits and, of course, the very best and exclusive content.

Repco is one of Australasia's most recognisable brands and as the Bathurst 1000 naming rights partner, we become only the 11th sponsor in history to do so for the flagship event - we couldn't be more thrilled and hope you are too.

Celebrate with us on our social pages to keep up with all the latest motorsport news.
